- Cruiseport Boston's past has been bright, but our future is even brighter. In 2010, Cruiseport Boston launched a renovation and expansion of its main terminal, which transformed a vintage World War I military warehouse into a 21st century point of departure for ocean-going vacationers. The $11 million makeover tripled the usable space on the third floor to allow for faster processing of passengers embarking or returning from a cruise. It also added vibrant colors, environmentally friendly lighting, new elevators and people movers, and signage giving visitors a sense of place and destinations served. In February 2015, renovations to the second terminal were completed. The $3.2 million project included improved ventilation, heating, lighting, additional outlets for power and data to facilitate ticketing and baggage functions, new restrooms, and new storefront installations to provide more daylight into the existing space.
- Four ships currently homeport in Boston:
 - Norwegian Cruise Lines' Norwegian Dawn sails weekly to Bermuda in summer and fall, and sails the Canada/New England coast in September;
 - Holland America Line's Rotterdam and Veendam sail every other week to Montreal and Quebec, respectively, between May and October. The Veendam also sails weekly to Bermuda May-June.
 - Royal Caribbean International's Serenade of the Seas sails from Boston to ports up and down the Canada/New England coast in September and October.
- Serenade of the Seas and Norwegian Dawn also offer repositioning cruises to the Caribbean at the end of the

- Cruiseport Boston's main terminal, known as Black Falcon Cruise Terminal got its name from the 440-foot Norwegian merchant vessel Black Falcon which caught fire November 2, 1953 claiming the lives of eight longshoremen. At the time, the terminal served as a United States Army Base.
